COMBAT PATROL

THE FATEBREAKERS

AELDARI | WARHAMMER 40,000 | 11TH EDITION

Ever the Asuryani of the craftworlds seek to alter the flow of fate, the better to ensure their peoples' survival. Farseer Iraneth is a veteran of this never-ending campaign. She has fought countless battles across the galaxy to deflect and neutralise threats, and understands that a swift and versatile war host is her best tool in ensuring her will is done. To this end, she leads a force that can strike fast and hard, and can excel whether conducting close-ranged firefights or swift hit-and-run raids.

ARMY RULES

STRANDS OF FATE

The Aeldari live on the brink of extinction. As such, their Farseers have become adept at reading future events, seeing the many strands of fate ahead of their people and the consequences of following each one. Taken at the right time, a simple action can avoid calamitous outcomes, aiding the Aeldari in their continued struggle for survival.

At the start of the battle, make a Strands of Fate roll by rolling twelve D6.

If you wish, you can then re-roll all of these dice, but if you do, roll one less D6. You can continue re-rolling all of the dice in this manner, rolling one less D6 each time you do, until you are satisfied with the results rolled (or until you only have a single D6 remaining).

When you are satisfied with the results rolled, those remaining dice become your Fate dice for the battle. These results cannot be changed or re-rolled further, unless a rule specifically states otherwise. Keep your Fate dice to one side — this is your Fate dice pool.

Before making a dice roll for a model or unit from your army with the Strands of Fate ability, if you have one or more dice in your Fate dice pool, you can use one of those Fate dice. To do so, select one of those Fate dice to substitute that dice roll. The dice that is being substituted is not rolled; instead, the value of the selected Fate dice is used as if it had been rolled (this counts as an unmodified dice roll of that value for all rules purposes). Each Fate dice can only be used in this way once. After using a Fate dice, remove it from your Fate dice pool and roll all remaining dice that are part of that dice roll (if any). You can use Fate dice for any of the following types of dice roll: Advance roll, Battle-shock test, Charge roll, Damage roll, Hit roll, Saving throw, Wound roll.

DETACHMENT RULE

THE FATEBREAKERS

WOVEN DESTINY
