

BLOOD SLAUGHTERER

KHORNE-ALIGNED DAEMON ENGINE

MECHANICUM (HH) • HETERODOX • DAEMON ENGINE

The Blood Slaughterer drags itself forward on hooked-impaler limbs, leaving rivets and prayer-script in its wake — a Khorne-bonded daemon engine that hungers for the drag and the kill in equal measure.

ABILITIES

Daemonic

This model has a 5+ invulnerable save (4+ against Psychic attacks). Each time a model in this unit would lose its last wound, before it is destroyed roll one D6: on a 6, it has 1 wound remaining instead.

Iron Discipline

This unit automatically passes Battle-shock tests.

Hooked Impaler

Each time the Impaler Harpoon is used in the Shooting phase to hit and wound a Vehicle or Monster unit, that unit also suffers D3 mortal wounds and is moved 6" directly toward the firing model (if possible).

Impaler Harpoon

Designer's Note. Adapted from HH3e Blood Slaughterer. 11th-edition conversion, 2026-08-14: rebuilt from scratch after a structural error was found — the 10e-era homebrew card built this as a single T9/W10 monster-tier model, but HH3e's own data confirms Blood Slaughterer is actually purchased as a unit of 2-4 separate 50pt models (base HH3e stats M9 WS3 BS3 S6 T6 W4 I4 A5 LD8), each armed with Slaughterer Blades and one optionally upgraded with an Impaler Harpoon ranged weapon. Rebuilt at 2 models to land close to the original card's ~175pt slot in both Combat Patrols it's used in (Heretek Maniple, Sacred Maniple's extended-workflow sibling); can be sized up to 4 models if a future box wants a bigger investment. Individual model stats are lower than the old solo-monster version, but the unit now fields multiple wounds-pools and multiple melee profiles instead of one fragile giant.
